Muggle - (Wikipedia)
In the fictional world of J. K. Rowling’s book series Harry Potter, a Muggle is a person who lacks any sort of magical ability and was not born into the magical world. Muggles also do not have any magical blood.

As I’ve explained in my articles at Godsebook.org, I believe J.K. Rowling intended Muggle to be a code word for human or non-alien.

Sirians are an extraterrestrial race from the star system Sirius that is shaped like an equilateral triangle. To see a picture of the Sirius system, click on the Articles link at Godsebook.org and look for Web Images, Part 1, Chapter 8, January 19-22, 2013.

In July 2013, I noticed a crossed-arm pose that I believe is a Sirian gesture indicating royal rank. My posts from July 26, 2013 onward explain how I discovered the pose. I've also posted hundreds of photos of celebrities with what I call a-list and b-list poses (I believe rank is determined genetically).

Look through the photos of Hollywood celebrities, memorize their a-list, or b-list pose, and watch them make a matching gesture in television episodes. The poses are the same.

Higher ranking a-listers are given preference over b-listers. Read my August 11, 2013 post regarding Kevin Costner and Kurt Russell who competed for the part of Crash Davis in Bull Durham (the Costner and Russell photos are in the post’s “Extra Photos”).

My eBay storage shelves are organized, my friend's inventory is moving, but my sales are stagnant. I sold one pair of flip-flops, but they were returned. I have plenty of page views (32 people viewed a tape measure on Mugglechild, 22 people viewed a bag of multi-colored yarn on Mugglecraft and the flip-flops average about 6 views per pair). A week ago, I reduced all prices by 50% and all shipping by $1).

Searching for Sirian (Alien) Photos
During breaks on my writing project, I've been searching for pictures of eBay executives and I've discovered several connections. Sometimes when you search the Google Images database, interesting photos turn up. Besides the eBay-related photos, I found a Web site devoted to rare historical photos that contained a photo of 11 year-old Adolf Hitler with a Sirian crossed-arm b-list pose (See: “Rare Historical Photos Web Site” later in this chapter).

eBay Founder and CEOs

My dowsing response to a question about whether I should stop selling products on eBay is “No.” When I ask if I should keep my listings on eBay, the answer is “Yes.” For now, I'll keep my listings on eBay.

eBay Founder's Sirian Pose
If it weren't for my eBay page views and zero sales, I would never have thought to look at photographs of French-born Iranian-American computer programmer Pierre Omidya. Since July 2013, I have been writing articles for Godsebook.org that explain that a cross-armed pose like Pierre's is a Sirian b-list gesture indicating that he's a royal in the second highest ranking group. Notice the position of Pierre's fingers and his hidden other hand. The a-list gesture is formed with opposite hand positions (look for Walt Disney's a-list pose in this chapter).

Pierre founded eBay in San Jose, California, on September 3, 1995 and a Canadian named Jeffrey Skoll was hired as the first president in early 1996. Meg Whitman, who worked for Disney, DreamWorks, Procter & Gamble, and Hasbro, became president of eBay in 1998. Whitman resigned as CEO of eBay in 2007 and John Donahoe II has been CEO since 2008.

Jeffrey Skoll: First President (of eBay)
I could not find a Sirian pose for Jeffrey Skoll, but learned that he is the 7th wealthiest Canadian. According to Wikipesia, Skoll was once eBay's second largest stockholder, behind Omidyar, but cashed out a portion of his company holdings, yielding him $2 billion.

Today, Skoll is the owner of Participant Media, a Los Angeles-based media company that funds feature films and documentaries including former Vice President Al Gore's 2006 documentary An Inconvenient Truth (more on Al Gore later in this chapter).
Meg Whitman: 2nd President
Since 2011, Meg Whitman has been the CEO of Hewlett Packard and her Sirian photos were easy to find. Her profile on Wikipedia says she is the 4th wealthiest woman in the state of California with a net worth of $1.3 billion in 2010. In 2008, The New York Times said Whitman is among the women most likely to become the first female President of the United States. She ran for governor of California in 2010, but lost to Jerry Brown. What's most interesting about Meg are the companies where she used to work. In the 1980s, Meg was the vice president of strategic planning of The Walt Disney

From Disney, she went to Dreamworks, Procter & Gamble and Hasbro.

Dreamworks Studios was formed by Steven Spielberg, Jeffrey Katzenberg, and David Geffen in 1994. Their pictures are easy to find. Perhaps it's because their work requires a gesture that describes their rank.

I wrote about Foster Gamble, heir to the Procter & Gamble Company early in 2012 before I noticed the Sirian cross-arm poses. Foster produced a documentary called Thrive, What on Earth Will it Take in May 2012.
He refers to an advanced race of extraterrestrials in the film, but does not name their race. A still photograph of the Osirian Temple in Abydos, Egypt is also in the film, but Foster does not mention Osiris. The handful of clues that Foster has added to his documentary prompted me to keep searching.

I have not been able to find a Sirian photo of Foster Gamble. However, The Thrive trailer at YouTube has a still image of Foster as a young man standing next to Gerald Ford. Gerald Ford’s Sirian a-list photo is easy to find on Google.

John Donahoe II: 3rd President
I could not find a Sirian pose for John Donahoe II, eBay’s present CEO. However, when I looked at his biography on Wikipedia, I noticed he attended Dartmouth and was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity. In my “Cycling, Part Three: Extra Photos, Page One” post in my August 2, 2013 post, I explained that I suspect fraternities and sororities exist for aliens. I posted a picture of the Phi Beta Kappa key that contains three stars arranged in an equilaterial triangle on top of the Greek letter Phi. As I’ve explained in several articles, the Sirius star system is arranged in an equilaterial triangle and triangle symbolism is Sirian.
The Wikipedia page for John Donahoe's Kappa Sigma fraternity has a image of the fraternity crest and badge that both contain symbols that are Thothian.

- Caduceus
- Winged disc
- Five
- X (used by the Freemasons)

Notes:

1. ENKI and Thoth were half Sirian.

2. Nazi SS officers wore a skull and crossbones on their hats.

Notice the five stars, caduceus and winged disc on the Kappa Sigma crest. Also, the skull and crossbones and downward pointing pentagram on the badge.
Rare Historical Photos Web Site

www.slightlywarped.com/crapfactory/curiosities/2013/march/rare_historical_photos.htm

Adolf Hitler at Age Eleven

Fifteen photos from the bottom of the historical photos page, you will see a photo of Adolf Hitler with his arms crossed in what looks like a Sirian b-list pose. Hitler's biography on Wikipedia says he was born in Austria in 1889 and his family moved to the town of Leonding in June 1895.

Center) Adolf Hitler, age eleven

Joseph Stalin

Adolf Hitler's Sirian b-list photo prompted me to look for Joseph Stalin's Sirian photo. I found an illustration of Joseph Stalin with his arms crossed in an a-list pose with a much smaller figure of Hitler standing behind him. The filename contained the word parody and whoever created the illustration must understand the meaning of the crossed-arm configuration.

As I've explained in my articles, I've invented the names a-list and b-list to describe the top two royal bloodlines. I've concluded that the left-hand (fingers showing with the other hand tucked in at the wrist) is the top group because the world's most powerful people have this configuration. Examples include Bill Gates, George Bush, Sr., Prince Charles, and William Randolf Hearst and Sir Richard Branson (I've posted hundreds of a-list and b-list photos on Godsebook.org, see: Articles).

Social Network Connection
In 2010, I went to see The Social Network, a film about the founding of Facebook. At the end of the film I noticed Armie Hammer's name in the credits, and thought he must be related to Armand Hammer (1898 - 1990), the industrialist who supported the Bolsheviks.

When I got home, I found Armie Hammer's biography and learned that he's Armand Hammer's great grandson and The Social Network is considered to be his breakout film. He played identical twins Cameron and Tyler Winklevoss (with a body double).

Wikipedia calls Armand Hammer an “oil tycoon and a philanthropist,” but there is much more to the story. Armand Hammer and a man named Jacob Schiff (1847- 1920) contributed millions to the Bolsheviks who established communism in Russia. Stalin was a Bolshevik who was responsible for millions of murders. In 2010, my searches for photos of Armand Hammer turned up a photo of Al Gore and Armand standing in front of a picture of Joseph Stalin (for more details, see my November 20, 2010 and November 22, 2010 posts on the older Godsebook.org site).
More Sirian Photos
When I learned that Jeffrey Skoll funded Al Gore's documentary, I realized that I had never searched for a Sirian photo of Al Gore. Unlike Spielberg's Katzenberg's and Geffen's that are easy to find, Gore's photo required more searches.

In 1997, Al's oldest daughter Karenna, married Andrew Newman Schiff who is the great-great-grandson of industrialist Jacob Schiff. They have three children together and are now separated.

Young Armie Hammer skyrocketed into several films after The Social Network including Clint Eastwood's J. Edgar, Mirror Mirror and The Lone Ranger. I searched for his Sirian photo and found an a-list pose (at right). Armie's co-stars in Mirror Mirror (Julia Roberts) and The Lone Ranger (Johnny Depp) are both Sirian b-listers (See: photos on the next page).

Numbers Hitler and Stalin Killed
More people associate the mass murders that took place from the 1930s to the 1950s with Hitler than with Stalin. Writer Eric Lichtblau, who wrote “The Holocaust Just Got More Shocking” for the March 1, 2013 edition of The New York Times, says Washington D.C.'s Holocaust Memorial Museum has cataloged 42,500 Nazi ghettos and camps throughout Europe.
I found Julia Robert’s b-list photo three years ago when I wrote an article about Eat, Pray Love. At that time, I did not understand the meaning of crossed-armed poses.

Lichtblau says the Nazi camps include not only “killing centers” but also thousands of forced labor camps, where prisoners manufactured war supplies; prisoner-of-war camps; sites euphemistically named “care” centers, where pregnant women were forced to have abortions or their babies were killed after birth; and brothels, where women were coerced into having sex with German military personnel. The museum’s editors on the project estimate that between 15 and 20 million died, or were imprisoned in the sites that they have identified.

The accepted figure for Stalin is 20 million. However, according to the documentary Stalin, Portrait of a Monster in Blood, the estimate is 60 million. In Gulag, author Anne Applebaum points out that if a dictator has people imprisoned or sent to labor camps, he is responsible for their deaths. As a result, there is very little difference between killing people and deliberately letting them die.
Sirian Photos of Famous Nazis

The photo of Adolf Hitler at age eleven prompted me to search for Sirian photos of famous Nazis. I believe Nazis are Sirian (who have probably been re-downloaded) and the purpose of the Holocaust was to eliminate Jews with God-created genetics. I believe there is a similar campaign against Muslims. Jews and Muslims honor the real God.

Easy-to-Find A and B List Poses

Sirians seem to take a LOT of pictures. I believe they are obsessed with genetics and a pure bloodline.

- Paul Joseph Goebbels (1897–1945) - one of Adolf Hitler's closest associates and most devoted followers. He is ranked with Joachim von Ribbentrop, Göring, Himmler, and Martin Bormann as the senior Nazi with the most access to Hitler.

  Later in this chapter, you'll find a section called “CEOS Who Supported the Nazis.” It was a shock to learn that Goebbels married Magda Quandt after she divorced Günther Quandt, a wealthy German industrialist whose heirs own a major share of BMW.

- Rudolf Walter Hess (1894–1987) - Deputy Führer to Adolf Hitler from 1933 until 1941. In 1941, Hess flew solo to Scotland in an attempt to negotiate peace with the United Kingdom during World War II. He was taken... prisoner and eventually was tried for war crimes, serving a life sentence.

- Heinrich Himmler (1900 – 1945) - Reichsführer of the Schutzstaffel (SS) and a leading member of the Nazi Party. Himmler was one of the most powerful men in Nazi Germany and one of the persons most directly responsible for the Holocaust.

- Martin Bormann (1900-1945) - Hitler's private secretary who was always at his side. Bormann had immense power due to his control of information and access to Hitler.

- Joachim von Ribbentrop (1893 –1946) - Foreign Minister of Nazi Germany from 1938 until 1945. Although Ribbentrop was not popular with the Nazi party, he was a close confidant of Hitler's.

- Hermann Wilhelm Göring (1893-1946) - Founder of Hitler's Gestapo and the Commander-in-Chief of Germany's Luftwaffe (air force). After 1942, as Germany experienced a decline on both fronts, Göring focused on the Nuremberg Trials were held between November 1945 and October 1946. Nuremberg was selected because it is considered the birthplace of the Nazi Party.

Benito Mussolini

I found a photo of Benito Mussolini on the Wikipedia page devoted to the Aryan race. In the early 1930s, tension existed between Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany because Mussolini rejected Nazism's Nordicism, claiming that the Nazi emphasis of a common Nordic "Germanic race" was absurd.

By 1936, Mussolini became a believer in Nordicism due to the work of an Italian racial theorist and author named Giulio Cogni who wrote Il Razzismo. Cogni considered the racial affinity of the Mediterranean and Nordic racial subtypes of the Aryan race and claimed that the intermixing of Nordic Aryans and Mediterranean Aryans in Italy produced a superior synthesis of Aryan Italians.
Nazis who were obsessed with genetics were eugenicists interested in racial purity. As we'll see in the next section, a eugenics movement existed in the United States long before the Nazis rose to power.

Sirian Poses in Group Photos of Famous Nazis

Sirian b-list poses turned up for the following Nazi officers and scientists in group photos:

- Josef Mengele (1911-1979) - a German SS officer and a physician at Auschwitz. At Auschwitz, he inspected incoming prisoners determining who would be retained for work, who would be sent to the gas chambers immediately and who would be used for human experiments.

- Richard Baer (1911-1963) - a German Nazi commander of the Auschwitz I concentration camp from May 1944 to February 1945.

- Ernst Rudin (1874-1952) - Swiss psychiatrist, geneticist, eugenicist and Director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Genealogy in that received a grant of $317,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation in 1929. Rudin wrote the commentary for the racial policy of Nazi Germany: “Law for the Prevention of Hereditarily Diseased Offspring;” receiving medals from Adolf Hitler personally.

The photos on this page may have been taken at Solahütte, Nazi resort frequented by Mengele and among the only places where he was photographed in uniform.

Center: Dr. Ernst Rudin
I could not find Sirian photos for Gregory Peck, Laurence Olivier, or James Mason who starred in The Boys From Brazil (1978).

Notes:

1. Rudolf Franz Ferdinand Höss (1900-1947) - an SS lieutenant colonel who was the commandant of Auschwitz concentration camp from May 1940 to November 1943.

2. Josef Kramer (1906-1945) - a captain who was put in charge of the gas chambers at Auschwitz from May until December 1944 before being transferred to the Bergen-Belsen concentration camp where he became Commandant.

3. It is estimated that more than a million people were murdered at Auschwitz.

5. The Rockefeller Foundation helped develop and fund various German eugenics programs, including the one that Josef Mengele worked in before he went to Auschwitz.
Edwin Black, author of IBM and the Holocaust and War Against the Weak: Eugenics and America's Campaign to Create a Master Race, says the concept of a white, blond-haired, blue-eyed master Nordic race didn't originate with Hitler. The idea was cultivated in California, decades before Hitler came to power. In 1909, California became the third state to adopt eugenics laws and then led the nation with one third of the number of forced sterilizations nationwide.

Early Twentieth Century

In 1904, the Carnegie Institution established the Station for Experimental Evolution at Cold Spring Harbor on Long Island that exists today as The Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory (CSHL).

Between 1910 and 1940, the laboratory was the base of the Eugenics Record Office (ERO) of biologist Charles B. Davenport and his assistant Harry H. Laughlin, two prominent American eugenicists. In 1935 the Carnegie Institution sent a team to review their work, and as a result the ERO was ordered to stop all work. In 1939 the Institute withdrew funding for the ERO entirely, leading to its closure. In 1962 its facilities merged with those of The Brooklyn Institute's Biological Laboratory to create what is known today as Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory.
Hidden Hand Gesture May Be Thothian

In my July 26, 2013 post on Godsebook.org, I included a page titled, “Tennis, Part Two: British Royals’ Diluted Thothian Genetics” that explains my theory about royals who are descendants of ENKI and his son Thoth. In William Bramley's book The Gods of Eden, Bramley says ENKI founded Earth’s Brotherhood but does not refer directly to Freemasons. As a result, the Freemason hidden hand gesture may be Thothian.

I believe that Thothian control of Earth has eroded because of a Sirian intention to take over the planet. ENKI and Thoth were half Sirian and there are probably many Freemasons who are Sirian. As I’ve mentioned in my posts, I believe Thothians include Sirians, but Sirians do not include Thothians. The Sirian takeover seems to be ruthless.
Carrie E. Buck (1906 – 1983) was a plaintiff in the United States Supreme Court case Buck v. Bell, after having been ordered to be sterilized for being "feeble-minded." The surgery, carried out while Buck was an inmate of the Virginia State Colony for Epileptics and Feebleminded, took place under the authority of the Racial Integrity Act of 1924, part of the state of Virginia's eugenics program.

Margaret Sanger (1879-1966), who invented the term birth control, endorsed eugenics in her book Women and the New Race (the Kindle edition at Amazon is free). She saw birth control as something to be imposed on the poor and uneducated.

Enforced sterilization became an issue in the state of Virginia when the superintendent of the Virginia State Colony for Epileptics and Feebleminded petitioned the board of directors to have an 18 year-old patient named Carrie Buck sterilized. The state had adopted a statute authorizing the compulsory sterilization of the intellectually disabled for the purpose of eugenics in 1924.

When the girl's guardian challenged the board's decision with a lawsuit, the case moved from the County Circuit Court to the State Supreme Court and eventually the Supreme Court of the United States. The 8-1 majority ruling was written by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. who argued that the interest of the states in a "pure" gene pool outweighed the interest of individuals in their bodily integrity. After the Supreme Court's decision, dozens of states added new sterilization statutes which more closely mirrored the Virginia statute upheld by the Court.
Buck was paroled shortly after her sterilization was performed. Reporters and researchers that visited Buck later in life claimed she was a woman of normal intelligence.

The Virginia statute which the Supreme Court supported was designed in part by the eugenicist Harry H. Laughlin, superintendent of Charles Benedict Davenport's Eugenics Record Office in Cold Spring Harbor, New York. Adolf Hitler closely modelled his Law for the Prevention of Hereditarily Diseased Offspring on Laughlin's "Model Law." The Third Reich held Laughlin in such regard that they arranged for him to receive an honorary doctorate from Heidelberg University in 1936. At the Nuremberg trials after World War II, Nazi doctors explicitly cited Holmes's opinion as part of their defense.

In the United States, more than 60,000 people were sterilized. The Reichstag of Nazi Germany sterilized over 350,000.

A biographer has described Laughlin as "among the most racist and anti-Semitic of early twentieth-century eugenicists," yet his work is preserved at the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory (www.dnalc.org). Type eugenics into the site's search engine and you will find a catalog of 931 items in the Eugenics Archive.
Research and photos that have turned up has turned into an avalanche. I remember reading Edwin Black's 2002 article titled “The IBM Link to Auschwitz” and decided to search for a Sirian photo of IBM's founder Thomas J. Watson. Blogger Sam Greenspan's list of “11 Companies That Surprisingly Collaborated With the Nazis” provided additional ideas for photo searches. As I've explained in my posts on Godsebook.org, I believe the cross-armed pose is Sirian with two configurations I've called a-list and b-list.

Sam Greenspan's List
Using Sam Greenspan's list of “11 Companies That Surprisingly Collaborated With the Nazis,” I searched for company founders as well as today's CEOs. I believe the world's largest companies are run by mostly Sirians.

- Kodak
- Bayer (formerly I.G. Farben)
- Standard Oil
- IBM
- Chase
- Volkswagen (Porsche)
- Hugo Boss
- Ford
- Siemens
- Random House (Bertelsmann)
- Coca-Cola (Fanta)

When I searched for photos of founders and CEOs, I found Sirian photos for the following people:

- George Eastman (1854-1932)
  Eastman’s photo is very easy to find. He was an American entrepreneur who founded the Eastman Kodak Company and popularized the use of roll film, helping to bring photography to the mainstream. John S. Friedman’s article in the March 8, 2001 indicates that Kodak subsidiaries traded with Nazi Germany long after America had entered the war.

  Friedman says Kodak's revenues and employees in Germany increased during the early years of the war as the company expanded to manufacture triggers, detonators and other military hardware. According to Milberg Weiss law firm, which has been active in Holocaust-related lawsuits, Kodak also used slave labor.
Zyklon B was the trade name of a cyanide-based pesticide invented in the early 1920s and used by Nazi Germany to murder an estimated 1.2 million people.

- Marijn E. Dekkers, Ph.D. (b. 1957)
  I could not find a Sirian photo of Hermann Schmitz, chairman of I.G. Farben from 1935 to 1945. Instead, I found a photo of the current chairman of Bayer AG, a surviving subsidiary of I.G. Farben.

  Dekkers is the Chairman of the Management Board and Chief Executive Officer at Bayer AG of Bayer CropScience AG (since October 2010).

   I.G. Farben was once the largest chemical company in the world and the company's leadership openly collaborated with the Nazi government to produce Zyklon B to murder Jews at concentration camps during the Holocaust.

Edwin Black's IBM and the Holocaust: The Strategic Alliance Between Nazi Germany and America's Most Powerful Corporation describes how IBM and its German subsidiary custom-designed complex equipment that they leased for high fees. The company also became the sole source of the millions of punch cards Hitler needed.

- Thomas J. Watson, Sr.

Watson was the chairman and CEO of International Business Machines (IBM) from 1914 to 1956. He was one of the richest men of his time and was called the world's greatest salesman when he died in 1956.

In 1937, Watson received an Order of the German Eagle medal at a Berlin International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) meeting for help that IBM's German subsidiary had provided to the Nazis. IBM says Watson believed, naively, that the medal was in recognition of his years of labor on behalf of global commerce and international peace.

- Salmon P. Chase

Chase was an American politician who served as U.S. Senator from Ohio and the 23rd Governor of Ohio; as U.S. Treasury Secretary under President Abraham JPMorgan Chase has had several name changes. From September 1, 1799 to 1877, it was called The Bank of the Manhattan, New York Company; from 1877 to 1954, it was called Chase National Bank; and from 1955 to 1976, it was called The Chase Manhattan Bank. Chase Manhattan Bank merged with J.P. Morgan & Co. in 2000.

Lincoln; and as the sixth Chief Justice of the United States.

The Chase National Bank, the predecessor of Chase Manhattan Bank which is now JPMorgan Chase, was named in Chase's honor, though he had no financial affiliation with it.

Ferdinand Porsche
Ferdinand Porsche and his son Ferry have matching poses that were easy to find.

Ferdinand founded Volkswagen and Porsche. In 1933, Adolf Hitler asked him to create the “Peoples’ Car” that eventually became the Volkswagen Beetle. The request marked the beginning of a relationship with the Nazis that led to several projects including the military Tiger tanks and the Elefant tank destroyer.

Ferdinand Anton Ernst Porsche
(1909-1998) - known as Ferry Porsche, was an automaker and entrepreneur who operated Porsche AG in Stuttgart, Germany. Ferry and his father worked together to fulfill their country's National Socialist regime's needs and met Adolf Hitler at many business events.
Hugo Boss is a German luxury fashion and style house based in Metzingen, Germany.

- Hugo Boss
  (1885-1948)
  I could not find a Sirian pose of Hugo Boss, the founder of the Hugo Boss clothing company.

  Boss joined the Nazi Party in 1931 and by 1932, his company was producing all-black Nazi SS uniforms as well as black and brown uniforms of Hitler youth.

  In 1999, U.S. lawyers acting on behalf of Holocaust survivors started legal proceedings against the Hugo Boss company over the use of slave labour during the war.

  After World War II, Boss was fined for his support of Nazism and was not allowed to vote.

  Google Images contains Photshopped images of Hitler in Hugo Boss clothing. Author Peter Rau, who wrote Our Nazis: Representations of Fascism in Contemporary Literature and Film explores a recent resurgent cultural fascination with Nazism that has occurred since 1989.

- Henry Ford
  (1863-1947)
  I found Henry's a-list pose when I did a search using his son Edsel’s name.

  Henry was the founder of the Ford Motor Company, and developer of the assembly line technique of mass production.
In the 1920s, Ford sponsored a weekly newspaper called The Dearborn Independent that published anti-Semitic views. The paper ran from 1920 until 1927 and was distributed through Ford franchises nationwide.

In Germany, Ford's anti-Semitic articles from The Dearborn Independent were published in four volumes, titled The International Jew, the World's Foremost Problem and published by Theodor Fritsch, a member of the Reichstag.

In a letter written in 1924, Heinrich Himmler described Ford as “one of our most valuable, important, and witty fighters.”

Ford is the only American mentioned in Mein Kampf. Speaking in 1931 to a Detroit News reporter, Hitler said he regarded Ford as his “inspiration,” explaining his reason for keeping Ford's life-size portrait next to his desk.

In July 1938, before the outbreak of World War II, the German consulate in Cleveland, Ohio gave Ford, on his 75th birthday, the award of the Grand Cross of the German Eagle, the highest medal Nazi Germany bestowed on a foreigner.
Ernst Werner Siemens, von Siemens (1816 – 1892) was a German inventor and industrialist. Siemens’ name has been adopted as the international unit of electrical conductance, the siemens. He was also the founder of Siemens, an electrical and telecommunications company.

- Peter Loescher (b. 1958)
  I could not find a Sirian photo of Arnold von Siemens (1885-1986), the CEO of Siemens from 1941 to 1956. Instead, I found a photo of the current CEO.

  Loescher has been the President and Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Siemens since July 1, 2007.

  Siemens is a German multinational engineering and electronics company headquartered in Munich and Berlin. It is the largest Europe-based electronics and electrical engineering company.

  In the 1930s, Siemens backed the Hitler regime in return for lucrative contracts and built factories near concentration camps using slave labor to build electric switches for the military.

  In 2002, Siemens was forced to abandon a plan to register the trademark “Zyklon” for a new line of products including gas ovens, the same name as the poison gas—Zyklon B—used to exterminate prisoners in Nazi death camps.

- Thomas Middelhoff (b. 1953)
  Hartmut Ostrowski (b. 1958)

Bertelsmann, the parent company of Random House, has had four CEOs since 1998. Photos of Thomas Middelhoff and Hartmut Ostrowski are the easiest to find.

  Thomas Middelhoff became CEO of Bertelsmann, a German multinational mass media corporation in 1998. Middelhoff bought Random House in 2002 for $1.4 billion, the year Bertelsmann admitted that they lied about their involvement with Adolf Hitler and the Nazi party, During World War II, Bertelsmann was the largest producer of Nazi propaganda. Its owner, Heinrich Mohn, is said to have belonged to Bertelsmann is a German multinational mass media corporation. Two Bertelsmann divisions (Penguin Group and Random House) are considered “Big Six” publishers:

a group that donated money to the Nazi SS. In 1947, the company was re-founded by Reinhard Mohn, fifth generation of the Bertelsmann family. In 2002, a commission appointed by the company itself found that it had co-operated closely with the Nazis during the war, and had also used Jewish prisoners in the form of slave labor.

It's possible the controversy surrounding Bertelsmann's connection to the Nazis is what caused Middelhoff to be abruptly fired in 2002. Gunter Thielen (b. 1942) became CEO until January 2008 when he was succeeded by Hartmut Ostrowski (b. 1958). Thomas Rabe (b. 1965) became the CEO in 2012.
J. Paul Austin
J. Paul Austin had his photo taken by Richard Avedon and his portrait is easy to find.

Austin was President, Chief Executive Officer (CEO) as well as Chairman from 1962 to 1981. Under his leadership, the company grew from $567 million in sales to a $5.9 billion, an unprecedented growth that has not been replicated.

Coca Cola's Nazi connection occurred when the ingredients for Coke became difficult to ship to Coca Cola's German operation. To continue selling soft drinks to the Nazis, Coca invented a new, orange-flavored drink created specifically for the Nazis. Coca Cola kept the flavor and brand that has survived to this day.

Business Pundit's List
A blog called Business Pundit published “10 Global Businesses that Worked With the Nazis” in June 2011 and several of the companies match the companies on Sam Greenspan's list. Additions include:

- Allianz
- Novartis
- BMW
- General Electric (GE)
- Nestlé

When I searched for photos of founders and CEOs, I found Sirian photos for the following people:
• Michael Diekmann
(b. 1953)
I could not find a picture of Kurt Schmidt (1886-1950), CEO of Allianz and Hitler's Economics Minister. According to Wikipedia, Schmidt and other leaders at Allianz had close ties to Hermann Göring and Heinrich Himmler.

Michael Diekmann, the current CEO of Allianz, is a Sirian b-list royal and his photo was easy to find. Allianz is the twelfth largest financial services company in the world that was founded in 1890.

• Joseph Jimenez
(b. 1960)
Joseph Jimenez is the CEO of the Swiss pharmaceutical company Novartis. Jimenez’s Sirian a-list photo is easy to find.

Novartis was formed in 1996 from a merger of the pharmaceutical and agrochemical divisions of Ciba-Geigy and Sandoz.

In 1925 Before the Nazis rise to power, BASF, presently the largest chemical company in the world, merged with Bayer, Hoechst and three other companies to form I.G. Farben. BASF bought Ciba (formerly part of Ciba-Geigy) in 2009. As described in the section about Bayer, IG Farben cooperated with the Nazi regime and used slave labor provided by concentration camps. IG Farben also produced Zyklon-B, the lethal gas used in Nazi extermination camps.

- Norbert-Reithofer
  (b. 1956)
  Norbert-Reithofer, CEO and Chairman of BMW, is an Sirian a-list royal and his photo is easy to find.

An article published by Britain’s The Telegraph titled “BMW dynasty breaks silence over Nazi past” says the Quandt family, who own a major share in BMW, were linked inseparably with the crimes of the Nazis.

Magda Quandt, second wife of BMW founder Günther Quandt, married Reich Minister of Propaganda Joseph Goebbels. The story is so complex, it requires a separate section. See: “BMW’s Connection to Paul Joseph Goebbels.”
A family business, known as Friedrich Krupp, was the largest company in Europe at the beginning of the 20th century. In 1999 it merged with Thyssen to form ThyssenKrupp, a large industrial conglomerate.

• Jeffrey R. Immelt
  (b. 1965)
  Jeffrey Robert "Jeff" Immelt is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of General Electric and his Sirian a-list photo is easy to find.
  Antony C. Sutton's Wall Street and the Rise of Hitler (2011) has a chapter titled "General Electric Funds Hitler" that explores the 1939 German electrical equipment industry's international cartel that was linked to two major U.S. corporations: International General Electric and International Telephone and Telegraph. Allgemeine Elektrizitats Gesellschaft (AEG) was the German General Electric (dissolved in 1996). Sutton says AEG was controlled by the American General Electric.

  GE not only participated in a world electric cartel, but also partnered with The Krupp Corporation to control the world's supply of tungsten carbide, a superior compound used in the production of lathes, drills, saws, military equipment and automobiles.

  James Lerner, a writer for the United Electrical Workers Union (UE) News, was the only reporter who covered the GE-Krupp Conspiracy Trial in 1947. His posthumous memoir was published in 2012.

  According to Lerner, GE officials were found guilty, but the judge in the case turned down the government's request that they be given a six-month prison sentence. Fines totaling $56,000 against the corporation and the individual defendants. (Course of Action: A Journalist's Account from Inside the American League Against War and Fascism and the United Electrical Workers Union (UE) 1933-1978, Synthesis Group Publisher).

  During World War II, Allgemeine Elektrizitats Gesellschaft (AEG) and The Krupp Corporation both used slave labor from concentration camps (See: "Another Big Story the Mainstream Media Missed: GE-Krupp Conspiracy Trial of '47," April 27, 2013, Peter Handel, Truthout.org).
Nestlé is a Swiss multinational food and beverage company headquartered in Vevey, Switzerland. It is the largest food company in the world measured by revenues.

- Peter Brabeck-Letmathe
  (b. 1944)
  Peter Brabeck-Letmath is the chairman and former CEO of the Nestlé Group, and his Sirian a-list royal photo is easy to find. A BBC story published in 2001 (“Swiss come clean on Nazi dealings,” August 30, 2001) revealed that the Swiss government ordered an independent commission led by Swiss historian Jean Francois Bergier, to investigate the country's ties to Nazi Germany during World War II. The commission found that Swiss industry had close and lucrative ties with the Nazis and used slave labor from concentration camps. Nestle was named in the report that said officials around the world were aware that forced labour was being used in their German subsidiaries.
A 2007 documentary called The Silence of the Quandts: The history of a wealthy German family describes the history of a family that owns 46.6 percent of BMW. Filmmakers Eric Friedler and Barbara Siebert spent five years on the film and won the Hans Joachim Friedrichs prize for television journalism. The family has an estimated fortune of $27 billion ($20 million Euros) fortune from factories where an estimated 50,000 slave labourers from concentration camps were used to supply arms contracts to the Nazis.

Günther Quandt

Günther Quandt (1881-1954) was a German industrialist who founded the Quandt family business empire that today includes BMW.

Just before he turned thirty, Günther married Antonie ‘Toni’ Ewald who died from the Spanish flu in 1918. Günther and Toni had two sons—Helmut and Herbert. Helmut died of complications from appendicitis in 1927 and Herbert went into business with his father.

During World War I, Günther supplied the German army with uniforms creating a fortune that he used to acquire a battery manufacturer called Accumulatorenfabrik AG (AFA), a potash-mining company, metal-working companies (including IWKA) and shares in BMW and Daimler-Benz.

In 1921, at the age of 40, and rich from shares of BMW and Daimler-Benz, Günther married 20 year-old Magda Ritschel (who later married Joseph Goebbels). Günther and Magda had one son named Harald and their marriage ended in 1929.

During World War II Quandt's businesses supplied ammunition, rifles, artillery and batteries, using slave labourers from concentration camps.
According to Wikipedia, Hitler intended to remain unmarried and Magda Goebbels, the wife of a highly visible Nazi official, became the “first lady of the Third Reich.”

Magda’s Marriage to Hitler’s Minister of Propaganda
Magda met Joseph Goebbels while doing volunteer work for the Nazi Party. They were married in 1931 with Adolf Hitler as Goebbels' best man. Together, Joseph Goebbels and Magda had six children. Harald lived with his mother, stepfather and their new family. After World War II, Quandt and his half-brother Herbert Quandt ran the industrial empire.

Harald served as a lieutenant in the Luftwaffe during World War II. He was injured and later captured by Allied troops in Italy in 1944; he was released in 1947.
From 1940 to 1945, the Quandt family factories were staffed with more than 50,000 forced civilian laborers, prisoners of war and concentration camp workers.

Günther Quandt died in 1954, leaving his empire jointly to Herbert and Harald, and making Harald one of the wealthiest men in West Germany.

At the time of Günther's death, the Quandt group consisted of more than 200 companies, ranging from original textile businesses to pharmaceutical company Altana AG. The family holdings also included large stakes in Daimler-Benz and BMW.

Günther Quandt earned the title of Wehrwirtschafts-führer, the name given to an elite group of businessmen who were crucial to the production of war materials for the Third Reich.

Susanne Klatten (b. Suzanne Quandt, 1962) is the daughter of Herbert and Johanna Quandt. As of 2011, she was worth $14.6 billion; she is the richest woman in Germany and the 44th richest person in the world.

Günther Quandt's descendants are among the 100 richest Germans. Herbert's widow Johanna Quandt ($10.6 billion), her daughter Suzanne Klatten ($14.6 billion) and her grandson Stefan ($11.9 billion) are near the top of the list (figures are in U.S. dollars).
